

Contact: Natalie Terashima

RKPR

858.922.3017

Natalie@rkpr.net

For Immediate Release

Coromega® Issues Statement in Response to Fish Oil Lawsuit Assuring Consumers of its Compliance with Proposition 65

Vista, Calif. (March 4, 2010) – In response to a recent lawsuit alleging that some fish oil supplements may contain unsafe levels of polychlorinated biphenyls, or PCBs, Coromega® today released a statement affirming the safety of its products and the company's compliance with California's Proposition 65 limit for PCBs.

“Our anchovy and sardine fish oil is purified through molecular distillation, which removes environmental contaminants such as PCBs to levels well below the stringent limit for PCBs defined by California's Proposition 65,” said Frank Morley, president and COO of Coromega. “In addition, Coromega's fish oil is third-party tested to ensure it meets or exceeds all safety guidelines set forth by regulatory agencies. We take the standards of Coromega products extremely seriously, and assure our consumers that our rigorous quality control measures ensure their utmost purity.”

According to the Global Organization for EPA and DHA Omega-3s (GOED), 93 percent of refined fish oils on the market in the United States are produced from anchovies and sardines, yet only one of these types of oils was tested by the plaintiffs and had PCB content well within the Safe Harbor provisions of Proposition 65.

Coromega is NSF certified and ConsumerLab approved. Consumers are urged to call 877.275.3725 with any questions or visit www.Coromega.com.

(more)

About Coromega

Originally formulated by a Norwegian scientist searching for a way to encourage his granddaughter to take her daily dose of fish oil, Coromega was developed after more than 10 years of experimenting and trial and error. The delicious and innovative emulsion technology gained a United States patent in the early 1990s, and in 1999 Coromega was launched. Today, the Company manufactures a number of supplements, including Coromega Omega3 Squeeze, Coromega Healthy Heart, Coromega Prenatal OmegaBaby, Coromega Kids Omega3 Squeeze, Coromega Kids Multi-V Gummy Fruits, Coromega Omega3 Fruit Gummies for kids and adults and Coromega Omega3 + Vitamin D. For more information, visit www.coromega.com.

###